RANIER MOVES FROM REDWINE TO GRANDDADDY KNOB TO MINE COAL

Harry B. Ranier's Triple Elkhorn Mining Co. has temporarily abandoned its proposed strip mining operations near Redwine and has moved eastward to long ridges between Granddaddy Knob and the head of Laurel Fork of Elkfork where the firm has three bulldozers and a loader mining a 6 to 9 foot vein of coal on land owned by Walter Fannin.

The company during the past few months had made exploratory openings over a wide area on the ridges between the headwaters of Straight Creek and Laurel, tributaries of Elkfork of Licking.

At first it was proposed to start operations on the ridges on the headwaters of North Fork near Redwine and haul the coal to Clearfield over the old Morehead and North Fork Railroad right-of-way.

In recent weeks, Ranier moved his exploratory operations eastward to the Granddaddy Knob section which lies between the head of Straight Creek and Laurel Fork.

Last week his machinery commenced uncovering coal and hauling it to Van Lear to load on the C&O. The trucks are hauling the coal down Laurel Fork to KY-172 (the Elkfork-Paint highway) and thence over 172 to Paintsville.

Through Wednesday they had hauled 22 truckloads, enough to load 10 railway cars. Operations are near the top of ridges east of Granddaddy Knob in a coal vein that runs from 6 feet to 9 feet thick, according to observers.

Ranier, a resident of Floyd county, told this newspaper he has about 50,000 acres under lease for mining along the long ridges in the north central part of Morgan and southern part of Elliott.

Deep-test in Lawrence by Inland finished.

Inland Gas Co. apparently has completed its deep-test well in Lawrence county near Glenwood. Reports were heard this week that drillers had penetrated deeper than 12,000 feet and that 4½-inch production casing was being set in the hole. The well is on the Paul Young farm between Glenwood and Fallsburg.

Richard Drake, drilling contractor, last week hit the white sand at a depth below 4,000 feet in the deep well being drilled in the Rubenwoods section of western Morgan county by Roland Amynx and associates who have about 3,000 acres under lease in that area. The deep well is on the Ruth Bros. land south of Mussel Shoals. Drilling is continuing.

James Pattillo of Ashland Oil Co. and Dale Bonta of Chevron Oil Co., both from Lexington, were in Morgan county Wednesday on business for their companies.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN RED RIVER GORGE

The body of a 28-year-old Lexington woman was found floating in the Red River Gorge in Wolfe County late Tuesday evening and police officers suspect foul play.

The dead woman, Mary Kaeder, a lab assistant at the UK Medical Center, Lexington, was found about 7 p.m. Tuesday by hikers about a half-mile up Red River from Sky Bridge.

State Police Detective Alonzo Hensley of West Liberty, who was called into the case by Powell County officers, visited the rugged scene shortly after the body was discovered.

Hensley said the body was removed from the gorge by Porter and Son Funeral Home of Campton and then transferred to Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington for a pathological examination.

Hensley said the examination revealed no wounds on the body and that the woman had been in the water about 24 hours.

According to Hensley, Mrs. Kaeder, a divorcee, was last seen about 11 a.m. Monday by her parents in Lexington. Hensley said that according to the woman's parents, she frequently visited the Gorge area.

Investigation into the woman's death is continuing.

The recanvasses showed voting substantially the same as officially reported in all three counties.

Woodford F. "Woody" May of Woodsbend was the winner. The vote totals were—May 3,280 and Brown 3,195.

MEMBERSHIP CARDS AVAILABLE; BLOOD BANK ENROLLMENT BEGINS

Steve Bliffen, pastor of the West Liberty Christian Church, announced the formation of the Morgan County Blood Bank Committee in conjunction with the Central Kentucky Blood Center in Lexington.

Members of the committee and their responsibilities are: Steve Bliffen, chairman; Garry Elam, co-chairman; Naomi Finch, sec.-treasurer; Bernard Hill, publicity co-ordinator; Cathleen Blair, donor arrangements co-ordinator; and Barbara Perry, enlistment co-ordinator.

The purpose of the blood bank is to assure residents of a high-quality source of blood in Central Kentucky hospitals and to assure them of free replacement anywhere in the United States.

The Blood Bank Plan is based on group insurance principles and a one pint donation every four years assures members and their families of unlimited free blood replacement anywhere in the United States.

A member's blood donation not only protects him and his family, but will go to help save someone's life, a child at the local hospital, your own, or a neighbor's child.

Replacement can be a major financial blow. One 14 year old who suffered liver damage in an accident on I-75 used 97 pints of blood before he was released from the hospital. In terms of dollars that amounted to $2,425.00 for blood replacement alone which is not covered by most health insurance plans. A one pint donation would have covered that cost.

Membership is open to all residents and their families in the Morgan County area on a voluntary basis. You and anyone you claim as an income tax deduction are covered, wives, children, and anyone you support without limit. If you and your dependents total less than five, you may add other relatives or friends to bring the total up to five.

You must donate or arrange for a substitute donor every four years. Medically you could donate up to 20 times in a four year period, and you may donate that frequently if you wish. Mobiles will be scheduled periodically in Morgan County for your convenience, or you may donate at the Blood Center on 731 South Limestone, Lexington, Ky.

To join, enlistment cards will be available in the Commercial Bank or in Elam's Rexall Drug Store. The cards are to be completed and returned to the bank or drug store, or can be mailed to Morgan County Blood Bank, West Liberty, Ky.

Mrs. James Perry is enlistment co-ordinator any group or organization wishing to have the Blood Bank program explained may call her (743-3156) and she will arrange to have one of the Blood Bank committee members meet with your group.

EFFORTS TO SUPPLY CITY WATER TO SCHOOL SITE BOOSTED AT MEET

At a joint meeting Monday the Morgan County Board of Education, the Fiscal Court, and the West Liberty City Council agreed to work together to speed construction of an eight-inch water line to the site of the proposed new Morgan County High School at Index.

Ronald Perkins, Morgan County ESEA director, explained that Lexington architect Donald B. Shelton expects to have plans for the new $2 million school complete by July 25, thus the need for immediate action in getting city water to the site.

The City Council earlier had agreed to supply the new school with water from the city water system, and representatives of the three agencies unanimously approved a resolution authorizing Spalding Engineering Co. of Hazard to make application for federal grants to help finance the project. Spalding is the City's engineering agent.

The resolution also authorized Spalding to include in the application a request for grants to enable the City to build an eight-inch water main to the site of the new West Liberty Hospital now under construction on Wells Hill.

It was pointed out at the meeting that though there is sufficient water available at the hospital site, a larger line is required to supply the hospital's sprinkler system. The Wells Hill section presently is supplied with a six-inch water main.

Construction of an eight-inch water main from West Liberty to the school site at Index will cost an estimated $80,000.

Mayor Charles Black explained that the City hopes to qualify for an 80 percent federal grant to finance the project.

Supt. Walton Jones, who presided at the meeting held in his office, said the board of education plans to use funds previously set aside for drilling of a school water well to help the city pay the local share of the cost.

Judge Allen said the Fiscal Court is behind the project and will support it in any way it can.

Mayor Black stated that the City Council is giving serious consideration to construction in the not-too-distant future of a new water plant to replace the town's present outdated facility. He added that the council had hoped to include the water line to Index in an overall request for funds to build the new plant.

However, the needs at the school demand quick action and he said the council will join the school board and fiscal court in making immediate application for the new water lines.

Plans for a modern $800,000 water plant at West Liberty were prepared some years ago by Spalding Engineering Co.

Representing the school board at the meeting were Supt. Walton Jones, Ronald Perkins, and board member Bert Holbrook.

Representing the fiscal court were Gene Allen and Dr. Wm. Holbrook, court member.

Mayor Black represented the city council.

DON'T USE DDT OR TDE DURING ANY STAGE ON 1971 TOBACCO CROP

ase DDT or TDE on your 1971 tobacco crop! Growers who use either of these prohibited insecticides on tobacco risk having their crop condemned, warns Dr. Wesley Gregory, entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service. "Some growers are still confused about the use of DDT and TDE on this year's tobacco crop because state, federal and ASCS regulations are worded differently," Gregory notes.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will require in 1971, as they did in 1970, each grower to certify that he did not use DDT and/or TDE on his tobacco "after it was planted in the field on this farm." If the grower has used DDT and/or TDE on his field tobacco, he will not be eligible for price support on that crop.

The wording on the certification form "after it was planted ed in the field" has caused some farmers to think that DDT can be used on tobacco beds. However, Kentucky law strictly forbids the use of DDT on tobacco in beds as well as in the field.

Adding to the confusion in Kentucky is the federal restriction which bans the use of DDT and/or TDE on tobacco, except for that still in channels of trade and labeled for use of tobacco. However, Kentucky law — an amendment to the Kentucky Economic Poisons Law (Sept. 1, 1970) — says that DDT must not be used on tobacco in any stage of growth. This means that DDT "still in channels of trade" cannot be used on Kentucky tobacco even though it is permitted under federal regulations.

Growers who use these prohibited insecticides run a double risk, Gregory points out. They will suffer personal financial loss if their crop is condemned and they also can place Kentucky's tobacco program in a serious situation.

Farmers can help the state's tobacco program — and prevent their own crops from being condemned — by using the recommended alternate insecticides which have proven effective on tobacco. You can find out about the insecticides approved for use on tobacco at your local county Extension office.

NUNN OPPOSES SEVERANCE TAX ON KY. COAL ONLY

SLADE, Ky. — Gov. Louie B. Nunn restated his opposition to imposing a severance tax on coal in Kentucky alone.

Nunn said a severance tax might be borne by the coal industry during the present boom in demand for coal and corresponding high coal prices. But he said such a tax could be harmful when the price declines during the normal ebbs and flow of that industry.

Nunn's statement came in reply to a question raised at a two-day environmental conference at Natural Bridge State Park.

Nunn said he felt the revenue from a severance tax would not be adequate to offset the money needed for unemployment and welfare payments during the low periods in the coal industry.

He compared the issue with the production tax put on whisky which caused a distiller to store the whisky outside the state and depriving Kentucky workers of jobs.

Both the main gubernatorial contenders in the recent Democratic primary supported a severance tax.

WF CAN BE HAPPY AND RICH IN THE HILLS, IF—

(Reprinted from Sept. 18, 1962 issue of this Newspaper.)

Frequently we hear or read the word "hill-billy" and our section referred to as a pauper section. "Hill-billy" is an honorable term, but outsiders give it the wrong slant. Hill-billies are not paupers nor ignorant any more than other sections.

If we are ignorant, why do other states hire our teachers to teach their children?

True, our hill country is a depressed area economically, but we are not paupers, as such; not like the slums of the cities.

We are a depressed area because the Mountain section has been woefully mistreated in the years past. We allowed the lumber barons to denude our forests, then we allowed the coal barons to take our virgin veins of coal. When the best was gone, they left — and behind them they left a population, deprived of their means of a livelihood, their virgin poplar, oak and pine, their rich coal veins.

After exporting our virgin timber and rich coal, then they commenced exporting our more ambitious workers to northern industrial areas. Richer states siphoned off our more ambitious teachers.

We are not yet a decadent population. But ours is a population with a preponderance of the very young and the very old. The 21 to 55 year old productive age group mostly is away at work.

We are chided for getting more than our share of the public school money and the old age assistance money. But just to have our rightful share, considering our age groups, we are due to get more proportionately than the rest of the state, area considered.

The 32 mountain counties comprise about one-fourth of the state's geographical area, yet this one-fourth graduates one-third of the eighth graders in the state, and nearly one-third of the state's high school seniors.

And though we graduate nearly a third of the high school seniors, there's not a state institution of higher learning (a college) from Morehead south to Virginia or from Richmond east to West Virginia. Are we mistreated, are we neglected?

Denuded of our saleable natural resources, coal and lumber, and with our more ambitious natives being siphoned away to richer states, the mountains have a problem. Not because we are mountaineers, but because we have been mistreated in the past and neglected here of late.

What is the answer? Maybe it's too complex to put in this brief editorial. But basically, if we are given assistance in a few broad fields, we can pull out of our depressed condition. The basic things we need, we think, are these—

1. Reforestation, farm by farm, and a managed forestry program; then woodcraft industries that good lumber will bring if we don't cut and ship it away.

2. Improvement of waterways; small watershed programs to deepen and straighten channels and prevent erosion of our tillable farmland; dams for flood protection and recreation.

3. An expanded soil conservation service with federal aid for rebuilding soil structures washed bare by repeated flash floods.

4. More job retraining schools to train our workers in other careers.

5. An expanded vocation program to train our youth in crafts.

6. Double the number of regional junior colleges (five are planned for the mountains) to give our youth a chance at higher education, and with costs kept in line with our economic condition.

7. Elimination of the crooked highways winding through hill country that have frequent steep grades and horseshoe curves.

8. More ARA aid in financing small local factories to utilize our labor and our natural resources.

9. Establishment of more state parks and development of a high tourist business in an area that is as beautiful as the Smokies or the Blue Ridge.

If the mountains are helped in obtaining these, our native intelligence, native industry, native skills will assist with the jobs.

Then we can keep many of our exportable ambitious people in the mountains to up-grade the economy, the services, and help make our hills the fabled land it deserves to be. Ours can be another Smoky Mountains filled with small industries, happy farmers, and offering tourists the vacationland so many city people want to visit.

Primary election day — it has been aptly described, "the silly season".

—CLAY WADE BAILEY

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

MORE GET FOOD STAMPS

An additional 17,018 low-income Kentuckians received assistance through the U. S. Department of Agriculture's food stamp and surplus food programs in February—making a total of 341,667 Kentuckians who were aided that month. The food stamp program accounted for 15,019 of the increase in the state. A total of 72 Kentucky counties participate in the food stamp program, and more than $7 million was distributed in February in the state.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL CASE

The U. S. Supreme Court agreed to decide sometime next year whether states can compel parents belonging to Amish and similar religious sects to send their children to public high schools.

The case arose in Wisconsin. But the Amish and similar sects reside in 19 states, and in many of them, there have been running disputes with school authorities.

Wisconsin law requires parents to send their children to public or private schools until the children reach age 16 or until they graduate from high school, if that comes earlier. The Amish apparently are willing to comply with the law to the extent of sending their children to school through the elementary grades, but they assert that high school introduces the children to worldly influences and the law thus violates their religious liberty.

The Wisconsin supreme court upheld the Amish, ruling that they have a constitutional right to refuse to send their children to high school. The state court accepted the Amish argument that public schooling beyond the eighth grade teaches what the court termed an "unacceptable value system" to the Amish. The court also agreed that high school "seeks to integrate ethnic groups in a homogenized society," and it concluded that "to force a worldly education on all Amish children, the majority of whom don't want or need it, in order to confer a dubious benefit on the few who might later reject their religion, isn't a compelling (state) interest."

POLITICS AND HORSE-RACING

Kentuckians might just be losing their grasp of affairs in horse-racing and politics. For they've just missed out on both. No Kentuckian (or very few) put their Derby money on the crooked-legged Cannero II, and all straw polls showed them favoring Bert Combs for governor, even high school and college polls. What's the answer? We won't try to fathom it.

STATE AID TO FAIRS

Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture Robert Miller let it be known this week that he had worked out an agreement with the State Department of Finance to have $10,000 restored to the Department of Agriculture's division of Shows and Fairs and that his department will give financial aid to county fairs in the same amount as in previous years. The department's budget had been cut back $10,000 for aid to county fairs, but this is now restored and the department has a total of $75,000 to aid county fairs with printing catalogs, etc. One half of a fair's allocation will be paid after a copy of its printed catalog is received, and the remainder will be paid upon receipt of the fair's financial statement.

FFA CONVENTION

Kentucky Future Farmers of America opened their annual convention in Louisville Wednesday. Joe Moore of Sandy Hook is the vice president representing FFA chapters in Eastern Kentucky. Highlights will be selection of state winners in speaking, and State Star Farmer, also honors for agricultural achievement award winners.

THEY LIKE THE HILLS

Members of 49ERS CITIZEN BAND CLUB of Willowick, O., are fascinated by the hills of Old Kentucky. They recently provided astro-jet air travel to Cleveland for Mrs. Jewell Thomas and Mrs. Mona Cable of Campton, Ky., so they could describe and show colored slides of Red River Gorge in Wolfe County in Daniel Boone National Forest. The club has built a log cabin club house for its meetings and helps finance a home for diabetic children. A lot of the club members are transplanted Kentuckians and West Virginians — and it is evident they get homesick for the hills.

BUSINESS HERE AND HEREABOUTS

CHRYSLER CLOSING PLANT

Chrysler Corp., America's third biggest auto manufacturer, announced this week it will permanently close its Los Angeles assembly plant at the end of the 1971 model production in July. The Los Angeles plant produces intermediate-sized Dodge and Plymouth cars and has about 1,200 employees. The Wall Street Journal said Chrysler has production capacity of 1,800,000 cars but has been producing about 1,200,000, or 70% of its capacity. Chrysler officials said, "continued operation of the Dodge-Plymouth plant in Los Angeles has become increasingly uneconomical because of changes in the market," reports the Journal.

SOCIAL SECURITY UP

10% — Social Security checks containing the 10% increase voted by Congress in March were placed in the post office Tuesday to be delivered to 262 million Americans. The 10% hike adds $270 million to monthly SS checks, bringing the monthly distribution to $2.9 billion. The increase was retroactive to January 1, but separate checks are to be mailed later for the additional 10% for the first four months of the year.

OIL CO. BUYS KY COAL CO.

A year or so ago, two of the biggest oil and gas corporations — Humble and the Continental — bought out two of the nation's biggest coal mining corporations — Consolidation and Island Creek — And now, a third big oil company is getting into the coal mining business. Transcontinental Oil Corp. of Shreveport, La., last week completed negotiations for purchase of Greer-Ellison Coal Co. of Whitesburg, Ky. for an undisclosed amount of cash and stock. Greer-Ellison is a mining company with estimated reserves of coal for 35 years of mining in Eastern Kentucky and Virginia. The firm sold $4.9 million of coal in the 15 months preceding Jan. 1 and reported net profits of over a half million dollars on the sales. Transcontinental's president said the Kentucky acquisition was a significant one for his company. He said "continuing demand for energy and the inability to obtain adequate supplies of other sources have made coal a primary source of energy."

TESTING PLANT FOR CARS

The U. S. Transportation Department announced this week it will build a national motor-vehicle test facility costing $9.6 million at Liberty, Ohio to take over the testing of vehicles for compliance with new federal safety standards. The plant will serve all of the nation.

PRODUCERS BENEFIT BY EARLY FEED GRAIN PGM. CERTIFICATION

Producers are required to certify their compliance under the 1971 Feed Grain Program. Deadline for certification in Morgan County is July 15, according to Ralph Hamilton, chairman of the County ASC Committee.

In most cases, it will be to the producer's advantage to certify his program as early as possible, he said. He emphasized, however, that early certification is optional and that a producer may certify at any time through July 15.

A producer must complete his certification before he can receive any set-aside payment. To certify, a producer signs a statement at the County ASCS Office showing the acreages devoted to various crops under the 1971 farm programs. At the same time he designates the amount and location of his set-aside acres.

The Morgan County ASCS Office is ready to give farmers all possible help in correctly certifying their acres," Mr. Hamilton said. "County Executive Director Daryl B. Whit and her staff will be glad to answer any questions to help with problems."

Producers who certify in time for data to be processed will get checks for their preliminary set-aside program payments as soon after July 1 as possible.

"The County ASCS Office also provides measurement service, at cost, to help producers determine acreages at planting or at certification time."

"Most producers are familiar with our system of certification, followed by spot checks around the county to verify accuracy of these statements," Mr. Hamilton, said. "Producers can certify acreages once they complete their operations if they do not plan to make any changes. The important thing is to certify accurately and as soon as practical for early payments (by July 15). But they must re-certify no changes can be made after certification."

Scholarship Winner To Work For Highway Dept. This Summer

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Gregory L. Elam, Index, Ky., has been selected to receive a Kentucky Department of Highways Scholarship to the University of Kentucky College of Civil Engineering.

WARDIE CRAFT COMMENTS ON WILLIAMS MEMORIAL FUND DRIVE

Recent donations to the Daniel Williams Memorial Fund include—

Mrs. Mathie Wells, $1; Bert Williams, Chicago, Ill., $10; Johnnie Faulkner, Pikeville, $10; Mr. and Mrs. Troy Francisco, Pikeville, $100; Edgar Lou, Jackson, $100; James Owen and Goldie Bach, Dayton, Ohio, $20; William Herbert Sebastian, Catlettsburg, $2; James Blevins, Carey, $2.

According to Wardie Craft of Caney, organizer of the drive to erect a monument in memory of early Morgan settlers and pioneer preacher, Daniel Williams, the fund now totals $1,829.

Mr. Craft commented on the drive this week as follows: "We are now well on the way toward a $10,000.00 Memorial for Elder Daniel Williams. We are still working with great faith that we have a dream that must come true. We are so fortunate in Morgan County to have such a pioneer, soldier, and preacher sleeping in our beloved soil.

"We are now asking through The Courier and through personal letters for friends, churches, or civic groups to donate a hundred dollars or more on the Memorial. If you are unable to raise this amount at the present time, then you may give us a pledge of this amount that is to be paid by June 1, 1972. Each donor's name will be placed on a beautiful granite marker, which will be placed near the Memorial. (That is your name will be placed on the marker if you give as much as a hundred dollars.) Will you deeply consider giving or pledging this amount? Let me hear from you soon, please?

"I am writing as many as five personal letters to friends each week soliciting the above stated amount. A hundred dollars does not stretch very far now in the way of buying but it will go a long way and live and last a long time on this Memorial. We would love to add your name to our honorable list of donors. Will you send in your check or pledge today?

"I have received three hundred dollar checks during the past week; also I have received nine hundred dollars in pledges during the past week. We trust and believe that next week will bring in a bountiful harvest on the Memorial. Let us all keep well in mind that this Memorial will represent only one man—Elder Daniel Williams—but it will represent and symbolize our living faith and our Christian religion.

CUCUMBER — THE FOOD OF ROYALTY

BY NEVILLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

LEXINGTON, KY. — In faraway India, between the northern tip of the Bay of Bengal and the towering Himalayan Mountains, there is a fertile region where many plants originated. It is from this fabulous region, plant historians believe, that came that all-important vegetable, "Cucumis sativus"—the cucumber.

As indicated by a profusion of ancient names for the cucumber in so many widely-separated lands to the west, it must have been carried from India long before written history, and there is evidence of its culture going back for at least 3,000 years. It reached China in the second century B. C. and by the beginning of the Christian Era had spread to North Africa, Italy, Asia Minor, and other countries to the east.

Although the cucumber has long been regarded as a plebian vegetable, in fact it has been a vegetable of royalty. It is recorded in history that the cruel and sensual Roman emperor, Tiberius, was inordinately fond of cucumbers, ate them every day of the year, thought they contributed to longevity, and used artificial methods of growing them. Charlemagne of France was likewise fond of this vegetable. So was Cleopatra who claimed they made her beautiful, and Julius Caesar who said eating cucumbers, especially in the form of pickles made better fighters out of his soldiers. And they may have all been right because modern nutritionists say that in its pickle form, the cucumber is high in the very necessary vitamins A, B-1, B-2, and C.

Then, to name other notable fond of cucumbers and cucumber pickles, there was Queen Elizabeth and King John of England. George Washington loved them and similar tastes were held by John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Dolly Madison, and Calvin Coolidge.

Columbus is given credit for introducing cucumbers into the New World where they were readily accepted and spread by the Indians. By the time of the American Revolution, both Indians and colonists were growing them throughout the eastern half of this continent.

Plant specialists say that the most distinct types of cucumbers grown today were known about at least four centuries ago. Present forms range from the stubby little gherkin to the giant greenhouse varieties that sometimes reach a length of one foot or more.

The name "cucumber" or "cowcumber" as it is sometimes called today in some sections of Appalachia comes from the Latin word "cucumis." In these modern times, it is interesting to note that while "cowcumber" may seem a facetious use of the word, this is how John Gerald and other early English writers often referred to it. Cucumbers are mostly used now in salads and in the form of pickles, but in John Gerald's day back in the 16th century, they were widely employed as a machine. In 1597, Gerard, a doctor as well as a noted gardener, flatly stated that chopped cucumbers "boiled with mutton or 'ote-meal' and eaten three times a day for three weeks without intermission, would cure 'all manner of sauce flegme, copper faces, red and shining fierie noses with pimples, pumple rubies, and such like precious faces'."

ENGLE'S ANGLE

With this statement by Gerard in mind, maybe cucumbers did indeed keep Cleopatra beautiful.

HILL POEMS FOR HILL PEOPLE

BY JOHN D. ENGLE, JR.

HAPPY PRISONER

Since God knelt
That day
On His newborn earth
And gathered up
The warm soil
In His hand,
Bringing the first
Of my forebears
To birth,
My country heart
Has been bound
To the land.
But I have been A happy prisoner,
Because I yield
Myself
To God's design.
How closer I am
To earth.
The happier—
Knowing the bonds
That hold me
Are divine.

BRECKINRIDGE'S STUDY OFF PRESS

BY CLAY WADE BAILEY

Chief, Capitol Press Club
A DECADE OF effort, at times a bit of frustration, and a completed volume of 588 pages on "The Office of Attorney General" was off the press this week—a study which reflects a nationwide study on duties of that office in the various states and territories.

Attorney General John B. Breckinridge conceived the idea of such a study in 1959 and during his previous term of office and with the aid of his own State appropriation completed two previous facsimiles of the study which were published by the Kentucky Law Journal.

The previous reports covered "Law enforcement" and "The Judicial System." The third phase of the study—the study just finished—represented two years' research under grants approved by the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Since the first Heart Fund campaign was conducted nationally in 1949, there has been a decline of about 20 percent in the death rate from heart and blood vessel diseases applying to persons below age 65.
